DADANG GARNIDA. The Role of Governors Leadership Based on Entrepreneurship in Implementing The National Resilience System in Seven Provinces in Indonesia. Under direction of SJAFFRI MANGKUPRAWIRA, AJI HERMAWAN, and BOMER PASARIBU.

This research seeks for a leadership strategic based on entrepreneurship model which can be implemented in all provinces in Indonesia, and which will influence all of provincial leaders, especially governors, in order to improve and strengthen the National Resilience System (NRS). This research consists of three parts, namely (1) measuring and analyzing the condition of governors leadership, entrepreneurship, and The National Resilience System (NRS), (2) analyzing the role of governors leadership based on entrepreneurship in implementing the National Resilience System, and (3) the formulation of a leadership strategic based on entrepreneurship model which can be implemented in all provinces in Indonesia, and which will influence all of provincial leaders, especially governors, in order to improve and strengthen the National Resilience System (NRS). The collected of qualitative data were selected and analyzed descriptively and analytically by the use of descriptive analysis, to meet the objective of this research. Samples were taken on purpose by considering provinces which could represent the varieties of all provinces in Indonesia. The numbers of selected provinces were 7 provinces, and the respondents were Governors, the Vice Governors, Chairmen of the DPRD (the Provincial House of Representatives), the Headquarters of Bappeda (the Provincial Development Planning Bodies), the Provincial Inspectorates, the staff of provincial government, and a number of Public Figures (VIPs). The results based on score-leveling indicates that the application of leadership, entrepreneurship, and the National Resilience System is well-implemented. The result also shows that the leadership of a governor has a great role upon NRS and, therefore, it may be concluded that a strong leadership of a governor will provide his local area with positive effect, namely, there will be an establishment of a strong and reliable NRS.

Keywords: leadership, entrepreneurship, governor, province, national resilience system.
